Public to get its say on cuts

Madison schools plan meeting on budget

By Randy Vaughn
Staff writer

The Madison School Board will listen to the public's concerns before making some tough economic decisions prior to the 1992-93 school year, officials said. The board met in a special closed session last week to discuss the school district's budget. No final decisions were made on specific cuts, Superintendent of Schools Dan Koestnick said, but a decision was made to plan a public meeting to hear the comments of Madison citizens. "We would like to set up a public meeting with regard to plans pertinent to cutbacks," Koestnick said.

The meeting is tentatively scheduled for early April, after a contract negotiating meeting is held between representatives of the teachers' union and the school district. The board last week approved 17 letters of honorable dismissal to teachers and nine to other personnel, such as teacher aides, maintenance assistants and vocational tutors. State law requires 60-day notice before the school year ends if there is a chance teachers will not be retained for the next school year. Deficit spending prior to 1988, enrollment and tax base declines, and state funding cuts have plagued the Madison School District budget.

Haitian president visits Dunham

By Bonita Tillman
Staff writer

Haitian President Jean-Bertrand Aristide came to East St. Louis on Monday to bring love to dancer-choreographer Katherine Dunham, who entered her 45th day of a fast to protest the U.S. policy on Haiti. "Today is a great day because we met a great woman," he said. "Jesus gave his life for the world and Mom Katherine Dunham wants to give her life for Haiti through peaceful resistance."

The 82-year-old Dunham, who began her fast Feb. 1, has said she will not stop until President George Bush stops sending fleeing Haitians back to their country. While Dunham said Haitians are leaving because of political persecution, Bush has said they are trying to avoid poverty. Political activist Jesse Jackson, who also visited Dunham, said disregard for economic justice in the United States and democracy in Haiti and South Africa reflects "moral bankruptcy" by the United States. He compared suffering by Haitians to that endured by millions of Jewish immigrants fleeing Germany. "We must learn from this lesson," he said. "We're asking President Bush to be consistent in his policies toward other countries. It's immoral, racist and wrong to lock out Haitians in 1992." "We want the same commitment from Bush that we had in Dispatcher facing probe

By Mike Myers
Staff writer

A Granite City police dispatcher who has a multi-charge sex discrimination complaint filed against the police chief is now reportedly facing disciplinary action and possible dismissal.

Police Chief Don Knight confirmed there is an internal investigation concerning dispatcher Mary Parker, but would neither confirm nor deny any specifics about the case.

According to sources, Parker is being accused of failing to dispatch a patrolman to a report of a suspicious person in the area of Marshall Elementary School. The sources said the call came in shortly before a shift change and that, under department policy, dispatchers are to dispatch only emergency "life-and-limb-type" calls at shift change.

Parker, sources said, called an official at the school and, after the school official ascertained there was no immediate threat, Parker did not dispatch a patrolman.

The sources called the incident "rumped up" and said Knight has been "out to get" Parker ever since she filed charges against him with the Illinois

Department of Human Rights and federal Equal Employment Opportunity Commission. Knight confirmed there is such a policy concerning shift change, but declined to say whether the policy has any bearing on Parker's case.

Knight also confirmed Parker had filed charges against him with the Illinois Department of Human Rights and federal Equal Employment Opportunity Commission, but said department policy is to make "no comment" on matters concerning internal department affairs, matters concerning department personnel or matters concerning pending litigation.

Mayor Von Dee Cruse, who hired Parker and appointed Knight, said he was aware of the current investigation and was

Kids Radio drive runs into brick wall

Parents seeking to put a children's radio station back on the airwaves have run into a brick wall.

"We have parents willing to go out and raise money, but we don't have anywhere to put it," said Kim Benda, a Granite City mother who had raised money for 95.5 FM, Kids Radio.

"Once you have a good thing going you don't want to lose it. We need help and we don't know where to turn." A trust account, set up at Boatmen's Bank after Kids Radio signed off the air March 2, was frozen by bank officials Friday. Parents and children had contributed more than $10,000 to the account.

Benda said the bank's decision to close the account forced her to cancel a weekend fund-raiser at a Granite City bowling alley.

"Now that the account is closed, we're at a standstill," she said. "What we're trying to do is set up a non-profit organization so we can legally raise money."

"We don't need Kids Radio to do it. We could do it on our own if we could get some help."

The trust account was frozen because T.S. Broadcasting Corp., which broadcast as Kids Radio, failed to comply with terms of the trust fund, said Larry Bayliss, a senior vice president of the bank.

Bayliss said that, when the trust fund was set up, Bob Cox

Clinton campaigns in county, greets leaders

By Mike Myers
Staff writer

A who's who of Madison County Democrats, both insiders and outsiders, were on hand Saturday morning to greet presidential candidate Bill Clinton at St. Louis Regional Airport in Bethalto.

U.S. Rep. Jerry Costello, D-Bellefonte, working on notice after a stop at Parks Airport in Cahokia was nixed by the Federal Aviation Administration, said he wanted to have at least 100 people to greet the candidate at the airport. More than 300 people showed up to welcome the Arkansas governor and he attempted to shake hands with and greet every one of them.

Along with Costello in the receiving line for Clinton were U.S. Rep. Dick Durbin, D-Springfield, State Sens. Sam Vadalabene and Ken Hall, State Reps. Monroe Flinn, Sam Wolf and Jay Hoffman, Madison County Board Chairman and Clinton delegate Nelson Hagnauer, Madison County Democratic Chairman John Bellico and a host of other elected officials and candidates for office. "It thrills me to shake hands with the next president of the United States," Bellico said. Also on hand were Madison County Sheriff Bob Churchill and circuit clerk candidate Don Bridick, both currently at odds with the party organization. Clinton said Costello had agreed to back Clinton almost a year ago and thanked Costello for lining up the support of area Democrats.

Calling this area the home of hard-working people who believe in home, family and America, Clinton said he was proud to call the area "Clinton country." "Being in Madison County and Southern Illinois feels like being home to me," Clinton said. Following the reception at the airport, Clinton went to the Alton Square Shopping Center, where he was greeted by nearly 1,200 people.

"Let's make this an old-fashioned town meeting in Alton," he said. "You fire away with the questions and I'll try to answer."

With Costello handling a portable microphone for the questioners, Clinton touched on subjects ranging from unemployment, crime and health care to drugs and Arkansas politics.

Kevin
HorriganFuture U.S. elections:
just mail in a postcard

We Americans are just two weeks away from one of the grandest experiments in the history of the Republic, a bold step toward direct democratic action, a ground-breaking moment that could very well shape the future of this nation.

I refer, of course, to the Elvis Ballot.

Even as politicians career around the country seeking delegates to this summer's presidential conventions, the U.S. Postal Service has quietly been preparing postcard ballots for another election, the Elvis Election.

Come April Fool's Day, you'll be able to rush down to your post office and, assuming the hard-working postal service workers are not out to lunch, pick up one of 5 million specially printed Elvis Ballots. Each ballot features two pictures of the late (presumably) great (no doubt about it) King of Rock 'n' Roll.

You'll be able to choose between picture A, which features a 1957-vintage Elvis, sleek and slim and duck-tailed, and picture B, which features an older Elvis, pudgy, pompadoured and wearing full Vegas regalia.

You, the average, hardworking, politically ambivalent American, will choose which of the two Elvis you prefer. Then you'll stick a 19-cent stamp on the postcard ballot and drop it in the mailbox. At the end of April, the post office will count all the ballots that didn't get lost in the mail. The winning Elvis will be featured on a brand-new 29-cent stamp.

Already the Elvis Question has captivated the nation. Straw polls and 900-number polls have been done. Elvis polls have prompted eight to 10 times more respondents than polls asking more serious questions, such as "Do you favor the reduction of the capital gains tax, whatever that is?"

Political experts have noted the fervor with which Americans have responded to postcard balloting. In a country where barely 50 percent of the voters turn out to choose a president, some people are wondering whether the postal service hasn't finally come up with a good idea.

Just pick a picture and mail it in!

You don't even have to be able to read to vote, a good thing considering the state of the country's educational system.

It's brilliant. Just imagine what would happen if we applied the Elvis Principle to other issues. For example:

- The Rubergate Ballot. Why not print postcards asking people whether they think Congress should have to reveal the names of all the House members who bounced checks on the House Bank?

- The "yes" picture could be a happy face on the sun. The "no" vote could be a broom sweeping something under a rug.

- The National Anthem Ballot. Voters could pick between the "Star Spangled Banner" and "America the Beautiful." There'd be room for a write-in vote for those who think "Louie, Louie" should be the national anthem.

- Clarence Thomas and Anita Hill. When Thomas' nomination to the Supreme Court was being considered, and Anita Hill was saying he had sexually harassed her, why didn't we all get postcard ballots asking us which of them we believed?

- The pro-Thomas picture could have been the backyard privy in Pinpoint, Ga., he referred to all the time. Hill's believers could have checked off a picture of that Coke bottle she said Thomas joked about.

- Tax questions. Congress could dodge the bullet about raising taxes by printing picture ballots. One could show a downward arrow to symbolize a shrinking deficit. The other could show a happy pig to symbolize pork-barrel politics.

- The Presidential election itself. Why send hundreds of millions of elections when every voter could get a postcard with the candidates' photos on them?

Each candidate could hold one item that would symbolize his theme. President Bush could hold a Desert Storm T-shirt. Paul Tsongas could hold a bottle of castor oil. Pat Buchanan could hold a pit bull. Bill Clinton could hold an eel. David Duke could hold a flaming cross.

Of course there will be naysayers, gloom-mongers who'll claim postcard ballots are too simplistic for complicated questions of national policy. We could vote on that, too. One picture could be a stack of books, and position papers, the other a simple picture of Elvis.

By the way, I'm voting for the old pudgy, forty-ish Elvis, the one in the full Vegas mode. It looks more like the picture at the top of this column.

Haitian President Jean-Bertrand Aristide, at microphone, speaks of his country's love and appreciation to Katherine Dunham, after a visit with her Monday in East St. Louis, where she is continuing her fast. stopping the drug traffic from Colombia, but it's not happening," Jackson said.

Aristide, the first democratically elected president in Haiti, was ousted in a military coup on Sept. 30, 1991. He has been in negotiations with other leaders to return to that post.

Despite the turmoil, Aristide took a "turn the other cheek" attitude Monday in talking about his opposition.

"We came to bring love to Katherine Dunham and we even love those who have killed more than 2,000 Haitians over five months because in our heart there's only space for love," he said.

He said the fight is not over money and control, but over dignity, respect, democracy, love and justice for his people.

Jackson said he admired Dunham's commitment to Haitian refugees because it showed what the power of "unearned suffering" could create.

"If she were eating, the eyes of the world would not be on East St. Louis," he said. "Today we look at Katherine Dunham around her bedside willing to die so others might live."

Dunham was joined in her last Feb. 11 by political activist Dick Gregory, who was arrested with two other men, Cleo Willis of St. Louis and former Dunham student Sylvester "Sunshine" Lee of East St. Louis, after chaining himself to the doors of the federal courthouse in East St. Louis.

Dunham, who has maintained a home in Haiti for more than 50 years, was hospitalized Feb. 16 when doctors decided she needed to be monitored more closely.

She was released March 2 after hospital officials said there was nothing they could do for her since she refused to eat.

If you have a dog...

You need to be concerned. Heartworm season is fast approaching. And it's as easy as a lazy afternoon nap in the shade for your dog to be affected by this potential killer. That's the bad news. The good news is that, with a few easy steps recommended by Belmore Animal Hospital, heartworm disease is easy to prevent.

Canine heartworm disease is spread by mosquitoes. Every dog is a potential victim. If left untreated, heartworm disease can result in the death of your dog due to the damage it causes to the heart, lungs and other organs.

Signs of heartworm disease include a chronic cough, loss of appetite, weight loss and fatigue. However, these signs do not appear until the disease is well advanced. Sudden death can occur without any warning.

A simple blood test — once a year — can diagnose this disease. If your dog is free of heartworms, then a once a month treatment can protect your dog from heartworms for the rest of the year. The preventative is safe, affordable and easy to handle.

Belmore Animal Hospital will be happy to answer any pet related questions you may have. Dr. Susan L. Jenner, practicing veterinarian at Belmore, is a member of the American Heartworm Society, an organization of professionals dedicated to following the most recent advancements in prevention and treatment of Heartworm Disease.

You can call today to schedule your dog's heartworm check. Dr. Jenner or Dr. Timothy L. Holt will be happy to get to know you and your pet. Appointments can be made by calling during office hours.

Don't wait... It's a matter of life or death for your family's best friend.

History becomes school celebration

By Randy Vaughn
Staff writer

Providing historical information to young people can be tedious for teachers and students, but mix it with creativity and it can become a "celebration."

Marshall Elementary School second grade teacher Denise Ruebhausen and her assistant, Debbie McMillian, a student teacher from Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville, have used social studies as their instrument for creativity.

The two were expected to teach Unit Six, entitled "Celebrate America," to their second grade class out of a social studies book, but they wanted to make it a special learning experience.

Class members responded and performed a number of creative activities to bring the information to life.

"We could have been done in a week by teaching straight out of the book, but we turned it into a month-long project," McMillian said.

"Because of the time we put into it, they got a lot out of it."

Projects included flags made with paper links, and a time line made with pictures and drawings of important periods in each student's life, Ruebhausen said.

The Celebrate America unit was divided into five portions: honoring our flag, places from the past, people from the past, American holidays and Washington, D.C.

The purpose was to teach the children what's important in their country's history and in their own, Ruebhausen said.

The projects allowed the children to work together or with their parents while learning about America.

"I think the most significant project was the 'time line,' where the children created a graph with photos and drawings representing important time periods," McMillian said.

She said she initially wasn't sure how it would turn out, but the students became enthusiastic and excited about the topic.

"Most worked with their parents to put it together, but they were excited to show off their finished project to other students," McMillian said.

Second grade student Robert Gerber's time line showed when he met his stepmother, with a picture of her, and provided a picture of him in a soccer uniform because soccer is his favorite sport, he said.

"It was to show the most important activities in the eight or nine years of their lives with pictures associated with individual days or with months of the years," Ruebhausen said.

The time line showed the students there are important time periods in their lives, including holidays, McMillian said.

"We also taught the children about the people from the past who have holidays named after them, and those people who do not — like Harriet Tubman — who are also important people," she said.

The students cut out paper men and women from catalogs and pasted them on poster board to display in the hall, McMillian said.

Another activity allowed the second graders to create a link flag—with 13 stripes. They were asked to work together in linking the paper chains.

"We made the flag to show them its history. The original 13-star flag was compared to the more recent look," Ruebhausen said.

Second grader Gerber said the linked flag allowed the class members to see how much work it took to put the flag together.

"We had the students work in a cooperative effort," Ruebhausen said.

A second flag was created with the students drawing their faces on it.

Washington and its many monuments were introduced to the students through a video hosted by Willard Scott.

"I was afraid the video was over their heads, but when the monuments were shown on the screen they labeled them right away," McMillian said.

The students enjoyed the creative approach. "It was more fun than reading a book, and I got an A plus," second grade student Philip Whitehead said.

"We learned a lot this way," said Rachel Kato.

"I cut up pictures, put them on paper, and traced around them," Michael Allen said.

While many of the students began with their first picture taken after being born, Allen had a picture of his mother's ultrasound on his time line.

The projects caught the attention of other teachers, who came into Ruebhausen's class to observe, she said.

"These are projects that a lot of older kids could do, so other teachers have been coming in," McMillian said.

Family pictures now line the walls of Room 121 at Marshall.

"Many of the parents didn't think that we would hang them and leave them up as long as we have," McMillian said with a smile.

Chancellor search picks up steam

The paper is flowing as the search for a new SIU chancellor picks up steam.

Applications and nominations in the search for a new chancellor are beginning to come into Southern Illinois University.

"We're getting a pretty steady flow of them. We're not at all disappointed," Interim Chancellor James Brown said.

Brown was named interim chancellor in September after former Chancellor Lawrence Pettit resigned. Brown will remain in the office until a permanent chancellor is chosen.

"We are making progress," Brown said.

SIU tuition hikes may be larger than estimated

The SIU Board of Trustees has given final approval to hiking student housing fees, and officials announced tuition boosts may go above an earlier 4 percent estimate.

The university system may have to slash programs and workers because of state budget woes, interim Chancellor James Brown said.

"We have to do something to get money," Brown said earlier this week.

On March 5, members of the board, except Southern Illinois University at Carbondale student trustee John Hall, voted to raise the rates.

Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville students will have to pay from 3 percent to 7 percent more for housing next year.

The rate of a two-bedroom, unfurnished family apartment in SIUE's Tower Lake Apartments will increase from $374 to $385 per month. A student will have to pay $155 instead of $145 per month to rent a two-bedroom, four-student apartment.

Carbondale students will pay $144 extra per year for room and board. The new rates will be $3,024 per school year for a double-occupancy dorm room with 19 meals per week.

Carbondale students traveled to the meeting to protest the increase.

"We're getting pummeled and no one is helping us. The state cut its aid so we're getting less money and now this," student Jack Sullivan said.

But trustees pointed out that there is no other way the university can keep from losing money on student housing.

As the state remains mired in a budget crisis, the prospect for a tuition hike for students at the Edwardsville and Carbondale campuses becomes more probable.

"We're looking at a tuition increase of more than 4 percent," Brown said.

Originally SIU officials were expecting to raise tuition no more than 4 percent, the amount recommended by the State Board of Higher Education. Students saw a 5 percent increase in tuition this year.

Correction

Former Madison City Treasurer Fred Bather has made a decision to move closer to his work in Edwardsville, where he is the Madison County auditor. Articles in the Thursday, March 5, and March 12, editions of the Granite City Press-Record mistakenly stated he planned to relocate to Edwardsville.

Roadside safety checks planned

The Illinois State Police will be conducting roadside safety checks in District 11 throughout the months of March, April, May and June, according to Lt. William Reckman, acting District 11 commander.

Reckman said, "Troopers working the checks will be watchful for drivers who are operating unsafe vehicles, driving with suspended or revoked drivers licenses, and driving under the influence of alcohol or transporting open liquor."

Reckman said, "Troopers will also continue with stepped-up seat belt enforcement in support of the nationwide enforcement effort to increase safety belt and child passenger seat usage."

Women's studies program faces cuts

Budget cuts in a women's studies program at SIUE have supporters scrambling to save the program.

"We're just trying to keep the program alive so it doesn't disappear," Director Deipica Bagchi said.

Students, faculty and community members formed the Community Consortium for Women's Studies in February to help fund a coordinated program at Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville after the department's entire administrative budget of $9,000 was cut.

The program, which offers an academic minor, was first funded several years ago. The money was used to pay for a part-time secretary, an office telephone, postage and travel expenses for faculty training.

"The number of people receiving the minor didn't go up and it did not improve (after receiving funding)," Vice President and Provost David Werner said. "It did not justify the money spent on administration during a tight budget."

The cuts won't harm the program because other departments take care of the courses, he said. About 10 students are now working toward a minor in women's studies, which supplements traditional courses that usually emphasize the role of white males.

"As we go back into the history of teaching, the achievements of women and minorities were not written into books," consortium chairwoman Mary Lou McLaughlin said.

About 400 students overall are enrolled in women's studies courses. Students can earn the minor by taking women's courses in a variety of departments.

In the past few years, a faculty member was given extra time to coordinate women's studies courses. The director also helped create the curriculum and made sure professors were qualified.

"Before, directors were given release time, but I don't have any support from the university."

I am doing this all above and beyond my normal teaching duties," Bagchi said.

Both Bagchi and McLaughlin said the program needs money to survive.

"It is a vibrant and growing program. More and more faculty are wanting to teach new courses in women's study," Bagchi said. "Without people's help it will disappear. There will be no more women's studies program."

McLaughlin said the group is trying to secure a continuous funding source and raise awareness of the program's importance. "With grass-roots support, maybe the administration's interest will perk up," she said. The consortium will be looking for private donations and grants.

"It really bothered me and I just asked what can we do. We have to do something," said the Rev. Robert Cox, head of the Christian Church in Alton.

Darnell Singleton, president of the Upside Down group, attends the church. He and Cox began discussing problems with racism on campus.

Singleton said the forum was a positive step for SIUE students.

"The students were really interested in finding a way to solve racial problems," he said.

"I guess the most significant thing that happened was that we had both black and white persons talking about the problem."

Job market gathering strength

St. Louis area employers are painting a rosy picture for springtime job seekers, according to the newest Employment Outlook Survey, announced by Manpower Inc. for the second quarter of 1992.

The area hiring forecast indicates that 25 percent of companies responding say they will add workers in the three-month period ending June 30, while 10 percent anticipate decreases in staffing levels and 63 percent expect to make no adjustments. An additional 2 percent are undecided.

Manpower spokesman Ron Ramler said, "Here in the St. Louis area, employment prospects are much stronger than those of three months ago, when 13 percent intended to recruit new workers and another 13 percent reported planned cutbacks. Historically, we would expect to see a hiring upturn heading into the second quarter."

The springtime outlook appears most promising in construction, wholesale/retail trade, services and public administration.

Mixed intentions are voiced in durable and non-durable goods manufacturing, transportation/public utilities and finance/insurance/real estate.

Nationally, the study reveals an increase of job opportunities, particularly in the fields of construction, manufacturing and services.

Twenty-one percent of those interviewed said they would increase employment, while 10 percent indicated plans to decrease. Another 67 percent plan no change and 2 percent are not yet certain. Prospects are best in the Midwest and South.

While the outlook is positive, the increase is largely seasonal in nature, indicating continuation of a long, slow recovery from recession.

Manpower Inc. conducts the Employment Outlook Survey on a quarterly basis. It is a measurement of employers' intentions to increase or decrease the permanent workforce. During its 16-year history, it has been a significant indicator of employment trends. The survey is based on telephone interviews with more than 15,000 public and private employers in 471 U.S. cities.

Economy is putting record numbers in state on welfare

SPRINGFIELD — Across the state, record numbers of families are turning to welfare.

Records show the number of Illinoisans receiving Aid to Families with Dependent Children has risen steadily since the recession began, from 670,949 in January 1991 to 703,181 in January 1992.

In Madison County, the number of AFDC recipients rose from 13,888 in February 1991 to 14,709 in February 1992.

Federal figures show the number of Americans in the program rose from 11.6 million in July 1990 to 13.4 million in December 1991.

AFDC provides money to poor parents for food, clothing and living expenses. An average monthly grant to a family of three is $334. The family also may qualify for nearly $200 a month in food stamps.

State and area officials attributed the rise in AFDC recipients to the recession. People either aren't finding jobs or are accepting low-paying jobs, they said.

In the last year, state unemployment has risen to 8.5 percent from 6 percent, one of the highest rates in the nation.

"The main reason is the economy," said Department of Public Aid spokesman Karl Piepenburg. "People are using up all their unemployment benefits and coming to us."

"It's just the general economy and the lack of adequate employment for people supporting a family," said Brenda McCain, vice president of the Madison County Urban League.

The Urban League helps low-income people find housing and jobs. McCain said 20 percent to 30 percent more people are asking for help since last year. "I guess we see about 200 people a month (over the past year)," she said.

The league now sees more men who are recently out of work, she said. "It lets you know what's happening."

Unlike police officers, who are under the Granite City Board of Fire and Police Commissioners, the dispatchers are hired and paid by the police chief and city administration, using the guidelines in the union contract.

Both Mary Parker, through AFSME Local 3405, and Jeff Parker, through AFME Local 1347, which represents the police officers, have filed union grievances concerning the married-couple policy.

The budget will be squeezed by another $40,000 by new state cuts and could be further affected by state decisions this summer. Eighty percent of the district's finances come from state aid, Kostenski said.

Radio

president and general manager of Kids Radio, was asked to find a third party to sign on the account, but never did so.

All contributions will be refunded.

Benda said parents in Missouri and Illinois were trying to raise $650,000 so Kids Radio could purchase a broadcast tower and Federal Communications Commission license for the station after key investors pulled out.

The station, which catered to children under the age of 12, was on the air 10 months.

On Friday, Cox said he was giving up his efforts to raise money for the station because the controversy was confusing the children.

But Benda said Cox reportedly told a group of parents on Saturday he had found a new investor and was willing to offer a deal to restore the station. Cox couldn't be reached again for comment.

"We don't want Bob Cox to be involved with the station," Benda said. "I'm not saying anything about him, but we don't need him. What we need is a few corporations to step up and help us out."

Benda said she has received numerous telephone calls from children asking what they can do to help.

Survivors include her husband, Omer C. Kleinschmidt, whom she married July 29, 1939, in Granite City; and one sister, Vivian Rowden of Granite City.

She was preceded in death by her parents, William and Daisy (Smith) Fossieck; one sister, Edith Holten, who died in 1968; and one brother, Robert Fossieck, who died in 1908.

Findlay (enrollment: 96) wins state Class A title

By Pete Hayes
Staff writer

Chalk another one up for the Davids of the world, thanks to a couple of Goliaths and their teammates.

Findlay's twin towers of Clayton Stivers and Eric Smith combined for 37 points and led the Falcons to a 61-45 win over Normal University High on Saturday in the Class A state championship game at Champaign's Assembly Hall.

Findlay (31-2) was making its first appearance at state after losing in the super-sectionals the last two years. The Pioneers are 86-7 over the past three seasons.

Stivers, a 6-7 forward, and Smith, a 6-7 center, were too much inside and outside for the Pioneers (29-4). Stivers scored 21 points and added 13 rebounds while Smith scored 16 points. Jim Allen also scored 16 for Findlay, which became the smallest school ever to win the boys state title.

Findlay has an enrollment of just 96. Hebron had an enrollment of 99 when it beat Quincy for the one-class state championship in 1992. Normal discovered that didn't matter. You can only play five players at a time.

"The last two years we had lots of talent, but not enough heart," said Stivers. "This year we put it together. We were getting frustrated. We knew once we got here we could win it. We were so relaxed it was unbelievable."

Findlay is located in Shelby County about 30 miles south of Decatur.

"I can't explain the feeling," said Falcon coach Mike Reynolds. "We beat a very good team tonight. We were forced to play a little more deliberately than we are used to doing. We're a get-up-and-down-the-floor type team. But we showed patience tonight."

Findlay broke open a close game in the second half. The Previously, the smallest school to win the IHSA basketball crown was Hebron (enrollment: 99) in 1952 with a win over Quincy in the one-class system.

Falcons led just 25-19 at half-time, and it took a three-pointer from Stivers in the final minute to open that lead.

"We just ran out of gas," said Normal U. High coach Cal Hubbard, whose team had beaten previously unbeaten and top-ranked Augusta Southeastern 63-50 in the semifinals Saturday afternoon. "I feel for our kids. We weren't able to accomplish what we wanted tonight."

"We had several unforced turnovers, including several traveling calls. I think it's the black shoes our kids wore. You see more traveling calls against teams wearing them because it's easier to pick up. The shoes cost us the state title — I guess — along with a great Findlay team."

Oh, what might have been for Benton.

Brian Holman, the Ranger's 6-5 forward, came through with 22 points to lead his team to the third-place trophy in the Class A state finals with a 76-69 win over Augusta Southeastern. It was the only game Holman played in the state finals.

He is a member of the World-wide Church of God, which observes its Sabbath from sundown Friday to sundown Saturday. So he wasn't available for quarterfinal and semifinal action

Bowling Hall of Fame keeps track of sport's deep roots

By Mark McCol
Staff writer

Although it's still basically the same game, the sport of bowling has changed quite a bit over time.

For example, just in the past several years, pin boys and paper scorekeepers have given way to automatic ball returns and computer scoring. In some places, there are now personal video monitors on the lanes so folks can watch themselves bowl.

But thanks to the National Bowling Hall of Fame and Muse-

Park having baseball, softball signups now

The Granite City Park District is taking signups for boys and girls wanting to play youth baseball or ponyball softball.

Any boy or girl who will be 8 years old this year is eligible. Names are placed on a list and teams are formed from this list or managers who need players will fill rosters from the list. Boys and girls who will be 15 years old and younger may also have their name put on a list and every effort will be made to get them on a team.

Anyone interested in managing a youth baseball or softball team should also call or stop in the park office. For more information, call Ray Hoffman at 877-3069.

Cardinal open house slated Friday at Busch

The Cardinals have announced they will conduct an open house from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Friday for fans who might be interested in purchasing 1992 season tickets.

During the open house, fans will have the opportunity to review and actually sit in the seats that are available for the entire season. Those fans attending will also be among the first to see the changes made to Busch Stadium — the shorter outfield fences and the new playing field surface.

Fans interested in attending the open house should enter Busch Stadium via the ticket lobby, 250 Stadium Plaza. Because many fans might attend during the lunch hour, concession stands will be open.

For more information, call the Cardinals' sales department at 314-421-2400.

State umpires clinic in Normal this month

The Illinois Amateur Softball Association will conduct an umpires clinic for all fast- and slow-pitch umpires March 27-28.

The clinic will be held at the Holiday Inn in Normal from 7:15-10:15 p.m. March 27 and from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. March 28. The purpose is to make umpires more knowledgeable of all rules old and new — teach new skills and provide an opportunity to improve mechanics and technique. The fee is $15 for one or both sessions.

Anyone wanting to register may do so at the beginning of either session. For more information, call Dan Highland or Cary Frey at the Normal Parks and Recreation Department, 309-454-9540.

GCHS baseball alumni night slated for May 15

The Granite City School Board has approved plans for an alumni baseball night to be held May 15.

Warrior baseball coach Bob

Stegemeier is on the Baseball Alumni Night committee along with Babe Champion, Greg Patton, Roger Belshe and Dave Dombek. Varsity Field will be the site. The evening will start with a home run contest at 5 p.m. for any GCHS baseball alumnus from the 1930s through 1990s who lettered as a senior.

At 6:30, there will be a game featuring players from the 1940s, '50s and '60s, with a special format allowing everyone to participate. At 8 p.m., the players from 1970 to the present will play an abbreviated game until approximately 10 p.m.

For more information, call Stegemeier at 451-5808 or 876-4674. Registration is required. For a registration form write to Granite City Baseball Alumni Committee, P.O. Box 973, Granite City, Ill. 62040. Include name, address, telephone number and year of graduation.

•Bowling

um in St. Louis, the sport never will lose track of its roots.

Located next to Busch Memorial Stadium, the Bowling Hall of Fame is three floors of bowling artifacts, pictures and memorabilia. The Hall's museum traces the history of the sport all the way back to its earliest known origins in Egypt several thousand years ago up through today's new state of the art technology.

Perhaps the best thing about the museum, though, is that like the sport itself, it's continually changing.

"This is definitely a place you have to see from the inside," said John W. Dalzell, the museum's curator. "We have more than 100,000 items in our collection and we never have more than 20 percent of the collection out at one time. It gives things a different look for the visitors who want to come back again."

The Bowling Hall of Fame, which opened in 1984, is unique from other sports shrines for several reasons. For one, it's probably the only Hall of Fame in the world where visitors can actually participate in the sport. Eight bowling lanes in the lower level — four modern lanes and four old-time lanes — allow visitors a hands-on look at the past and present.

Actually, those persons who use the modern lanes in the facility are also getting a look into the future. Brunswick and AMF use the lanes at the Hall to test out the latest equipment and technological breakthroughs, Dalzell said.

On the ground floor of the museum visitors can tour the gallery, which features various historical artifacts such as bowling badges, trophies and the world's largest collection of bowling shirts. Also part of the bowling museum are collections of bowling pins and balls, as well as an interesting arrangement of beer trays.

From the gallery, visitors can walk through Tenpin Alley. It's here where the history of the game is told, and Dalzell says history is very important to the structure of the Hall.

"A Hall of Fame has to have history, so people can see how the game got where it is today," Dalzell said.

That's no problem here. There are several life-size exhibits and displays explaining all about the history of bowling around the world and in the United States.

Once upstairs, visitors can tour one of four actual halls of fame that honor the great men and women of the sport. The Professional Bowlers Association (PBA), the American Bowling Congress (ABC), the Women's International Bowling Congress (WIBC) and the Bowling Proprietors Association of America (BPAA) all have their own wings on this floor. Each wing has a different look, as the four organizations were given the opportunity to design their own hall.

Also, if you know a top-flight bowler from your area, you might be able to find his or her name upstairs in the section known as Hometown Heroes. Every person who has ever bowled a 300 game, an 800 series, or is in a local Hall of Fame is listed in the computer in this section.

In addition to telling the history of the game in an entertaining way, the Bowling Hall of Fame and Museum offers another service to the community. Its three-story, 50,000-square foot building is available for rent, and can serve as a unique place to hold receptions, dinners, parties or other similar affairs. With a library and a theater located in the facility, it can also serve for corporate conferences and services.

The Bowling Hall of Fame is open from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. daily, and Sundays from noon until 5 p.m. For information about group tours, or reservations and rental of the facilities, call 314-231-6340.

— although he would have been able to play Friday if Benton's game had been scheduled in the afternoon session.

Without Holman, the Rangers (26-7) lost 83-74 to eventual state champion Findlay in Saturday's second semifinal despite 41 points from all-star Jolo Johnson. Holman was was 7 of 10 from the field and 8 of 9 from the foul line in the consolation game, with 14 rebounds. Johnson scored 20 points in the final game and finished the four games of the state tournament with 121 points. The Rangers, who played and beat Madison 67-56 on Jan. 4, led 38-34 at halftime.

Augusta's Southeastern woke up Saturday morning unbeaten and ranked No. 1 in the state. But they lost their last two games and settled for fourth place with a 32-2 record.

"We came a long way," said Benton coach Rod Shurtz. "Most people didn't think we'd win 10 games — and that was including football."

All others bowl scratch. Failure to use the proper average or make a correction prior to completion of the first game of a series or within 48 hours after completion of a series, if the tournament director has given written consent to the bowler before the end of the first game of a series, score will be disqualified if submitted average is lower than actual average. Overweight Problem May Have Solution

KANSAS CITY—Overweight people may have help in their effort to lose weight. A noted clinical nutritionist has created a chewable tablet, appropriately named Food Plus+, made from a natural food that may assist in weight loss without dieting. In one study, a group of overweight people were given this ingredient of Food Plus+ and were told not to change their regular eating habits. The group showed a significant weight loss. Food Plus+ tablets combine this ingredient with natural vitamins and minerals to improve its effectiveness as an aid to weight loss.

...Significant Weight Loss...

One woman states, "Not only have I lost weight with Food Plus+, but I didn't feel hungry, as with some other products I've tried." Another stated, "Food Plus+ tablets are convenient and I was surprised at their good flavors."

Food Plus+ is not a drug, and contains only ingredients that are known to be safe, and is now available from physicians and at participating drug stores.

Food Plus+ is available at:

Prepare garden for healthy vegetables

Spring is the time to prepare your garden beds for planting. Good news: you don't need to put in lots of time or expensive chemical additives to grow a beautiful garden. True, flowers and vegetables need nutrients and healthy soil beds to grow vigorously. But, as organic gardeners will tell you, all you need to do is to feed the soil, and the soil will feed the plants. A little attention now will pay off richly in a few weeks' time.

Fertile soils provide plants with the nutrients, water and minerals that they need to grow. What soils need is good quality organic matter to make them fertile. Adding organic matter such as compost to soils indirectly supplies them with nutrients. Compost provides food for earthworms and naturally-occurring bacteria, fungi, and other beneficial microorganisms in the soil. The earthworms and the microorganisms digest the compost and break it down into nutrients that plant roots can absorb.

Adding compost to soil also improves the soil's structure. That is, it aerates the soil and improves its capacity to hold nutrients and water and make them available as plants need them.

For years, gardeners have used chemical fertilizers to feed plants. These can leach and pollute groundwater. In addition, these bypass the natural cycles of feeding microorganisms and aerating soil and throw the soil out of balance. In fact, chemical fertilizers and pesticides often kill earthworms and microorganisms, and so interfere with the breakdown of organic matter. In time, this causes soil to become less fertile and less able to hold water and nutrients.

Spring is the best time of year to get plants and garden beds off to a healthy start. What should a gardener do?

— Whatever kinds of tomatoes you grow, maximize your yield by staking or caging plants to keep fruit off the ground. Fertilize regularly with a high-quality, water soluble tomato food for Tomatoes. For maximum flavor and vitamin C content, leave them on the vine until just before you're ready to use them.

• Test the soil. Find out whether it has balanced pH and sufficient nutrient and mineral reserves to produce healthy growth. Soil test kits are inexpensive and available at most lawn and garden centers, or through your local county extension service.

• Aerate garden beds. Turning the soil and allowing air into it is vital; oxygen enables microorganisms to digest organic matter and so fuels the natural cycle.

• Add compost or other organic matter to garden beds each year. Add soil amendments such as dehydrated cow manure to soil. Turn over top two to four inches of garden bed with a spade, then rake or spade two to four inches dehydrated or composted manure into soil surface. This enhances organic matter content, improves air, water, and nutrient retention, increases drainage, and stimulates micro-organism activity.

• Fertilize. A well-fed garden bed should not need additional fertilizing. But if you wish to give plants an extra boost, feed them with all-natural, organic fertilizers.

Natural, organic fertilizers are those which have low numbers

(in the single digits) on the label. These come from plant or animal sources; they are naturally low in nitrogen and occur on forms that are released slowly into the soil, so that they do not blast plants with nitrogen and other nutrients, and do not leach into and pollute groundwater.

Feeding plants with an all natural, organic fertilizer will make nitrogen and nutrients available to the plants at a natural pace over a longer period of time; plants will sink longer roots, store more nutrients, and grow more slowly and vigorously.

— Read and follow label directions each time before you use a weed killer, fertilizer or other lawn and garden product.

How to read lawn care labels

Proper lawn care means reading and following product label directions every time before using. Here's information you will find on every label:

• Product name: The manufacturer's brand name and the product's scientific name are listed on the front panel. The label should also list what the product can be used on and pests the product is registered to control.

• Ingredients lists: There are two types of ingredients, active and inert. Active ingredients are those that affect the targeted pest. For example, glyphosate is the active ingredient in some grass and weed killers.

• Warnings and precautionary statement: Every label bears the statement, "Keep out of reach of children." There may be other precautions listed. Only you, as the user, can ensure compliance. Signal word: This indicates the toxicity category of the product, which is determined by specific criteria. The signal words to look for are Caution, Warning, Danger and Danger/Poison. The label on some carry the least toxic, "Caution" signal word.

• Statement for practical treatment: These are directions in case of accidental overexposure, such as when a product spills on skin or in the eyes or is eaten or inhaled. If overexposure occurs, follow the first aid directions listed and immediately contact your physician or a poison control center.

• Directions for use, storage and disposal: This will tell you proper methods for mixing and applying the product. Follow them precisely. Use the listed storage and disposal instructions.

Protection available for furniture

Did you know that, like your skin, your wooden furniture can suffer from dirt, dust, irritating chemicals and sun damage?

Most people use a gentle moisturizing cream to protect and restore their skin. The same procedure is equally necessary and natural for your furniture.

This similar vulnerability to environmental damage was recognized by Natural World, a Connecticut-based company best known for its non-toxic, natural and environmentally safe personal care products. Natural World used its personal skin care experience in developing an all-natural, non-toxic wood conditioner that safely nurtures, replenishes and protects wooden surfaces.

As with its other products, Natural World did not use any petroleum distillates or dangerous solvents that dull or damage wood. Nor did Natural World choose to use silicone or wax.

Instead, Wood Conditioning Creme is a totally non-toxic, concentrated blend of pure oils, natural shining agents and cleaning emulsifiers, teamed up to safely clean and polish and protect your fine furniture, woodwork and wood paneling—whether lacquered, varnished or enameled.

For a Natural World catalog or information on environmentally safe products and their uses, call the company's toll-free number 1-800-728-3388.

Put something shocking into your pool

Go ahead. Put something shocking in your pool. In fact, experts now recommend a weekly shock treatment as an important preventive pool care step that can eliminate pool water contamination by bacteria and algae caused by everyday wastes, such as suntan oil, perspiration, dirt and grass.

Pool owners should understand that clear water is not necessarily clean pool water. However, an effective shock treatment can both cleanse your pool to rid it of invisible bacteria and algae, and oxidize it, to give the water a sparkling clear appearance.

Many experts suggest that you shock treat your pool weekly to prevent pool water problems, as well as to offset the effects of rain, high temperature and heavy pool usage, says Dr. R. Neil Lowry, an independent consulting chemist to government and industry in the area of pool and spa water maintenance.

Not all shock treatments are identical. Some oxidize your pool water, but do not kill bacteria and algae. Be sure to read product labels. One tip-off is that shock treatments that allow you to swim immediately after use oxidize only and do not kill bacteria and algae.

Here's a chart to help you analyze and compare the most common products available.

Once you have chosen a shock treatment, the best time to shock is in the evening after everybody has already used the pool. The contaminant levels are at the highest point for the day, and shock treatment is most useful. Shocking at this time also allows chlorine levels to return to an acceptable range by the following morning when you're ready to dive in.

Want more tips and suggestions for proper pool care? Call the Pool Care Hotline (800) 222-2348.

Big impressions can be created from small lawns

If you have a small yard, you know you don't have to spend a lot of time maintaining it. However, chances are you're more devoted to detailing every inch of that property than those with much larger spreads. It's not the total effort that counts; it's the effect per square foot.

One thing's for sure, some of the most beautiful properties you will ever see are a quarter acre or less in size. Some things never change, though. The keys to success for small yards are the same as those for properties as big as golf courses: proper mowing, watering and fertilizing.

Mowing is one chore where small yard owners have it made. With a small lawn you can use almost anything from an old fashioned push mower to a high-tech electric mower that floats on a bed of air.

Small lawns have lots of stops and starts and more than their share of tight corners. Often the best way to cut grass in tight spots is with a hand-held grass shear.

On uneven ground, special care must be taken to avoid cutting the grass too low. Generally, you're better off keeping your grass on the longer side to encourage deeper rooting and thus better drought tolerance.

Additional reminders about mowing: don't cut the grass when it's wet, because the mower tears the grass; leave the clippings on for free mulch and to save on fertilizer; alternate the direction of the cut each week to avoid putting ruts in your lawn from the wheels on the mower.

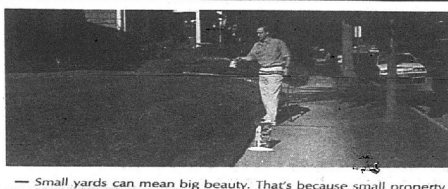

Many homeowners with small yards enjoy watering their lawns by hand. That's OK as long as you water deeply. Deep watering encourages the grass roots to grow more deeply in search of that water. That gives you a tougher, stronger lawn.

Water early or later in the day to reduce water loss due to evaporation. During the summer, you may not be able to water due to drought restrictions. Don't worry. The high heat and lack of water will signal the grass to automatically go dormant and stop growing. Though it will turn brown, the lawn will revive itself when the weather cools and the rains return in the fall.

During droughts, avoid fertilizing your lawn. This stimulates the grass to grow and increases its need for water.

When fertilizing, using a traditional lawn food spreader within the confines of a small yard can be tricky. The extra maneuvering required to navigate tight corners can result in uneven application of fertilizer, which results in very noticeable burn spots or uneven growth. An excellent alternative is a "spray-on" water-soluble fertilizer.

Small yards can mean big beauty. That's because small property owners tend to devote much more effort per square foot in manicuring their lawns.

Indoor plants absorb pollutants

New reasons for appreciating actively growing indoor plants have been developed by the combined research of several organizations. These organizations believe that with healthy indoor plants they have largely absorbed the main "off-gassing" pollutants from manufactured components of modern buildings.

The tighter the buildings, with only mechanical ventilation, and the higher the content of newly-made building parts or furnishings, the greater the likelihood of varying degrees and types of sickness reactions, according to clinical ecologists.

The U.S. Environmental Protection Agency says that a cancer death rate of 26,000 per year is also caused by these pollutants.

But now horticultural scientists say that two typical good sized foot-and-a-half or so high, healthy, growing plants per 10-foot by 10-foot room space, in office or home, can absorb and mostly destroy the polluting substances.

They do this through the leaves, the soil and the roots, it is found. The normal beneficial micro-organisms in the soil also do their part in breaking down the gases. Sometimes, activated carbon may need to be added, to help the process.

In closed rooms, without natural ventilation, people also make their own contributions to atmospheric pollution, as do clothing, packaging materials and other manufactured articles.

However, the primary offenders in this "tight-building sickness" are formaldehyde, benzene and trichloroethylene.

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration has been especially keen to overcome these problems. Therefore, they joined with the Associated Landscape Contractors of America in sponsoring a study by Dr. B.C. Wolverton that established, with closed-chamber experiments, the effectiveness of actively growing plants in relieving the air of the major pollutants.

In actual rooms being used by humans, though, additional stresses on plants often require replacement of plants every three months or so. People routinely knock off branches, demand that plants be placed in front of air conditioners or heaters or in too much sunlight or too-dark locations — or they over-water and over-fertilize the plants.

The University of Florida specialists on tropical foliage plants say that more of them are killed by "over-friendly" over-fertilizing than any other cause. (This double-fertilizing culprit is often the occupant of the neighboring desk.)

When plants must be replaced, it is because their active, healthy metabolism has suffered so much from these unnatural stresses that they have begun to die. Their ability to rid the interior environment of toxic chemicals has become impaired or eliminated.

But Dr. John A. Thomson, of the Vitamin Institute, has created a 50 vitamins-hormones formula that conquers these problems, when added regularly to the other feeding maintenance of the plants.

This formula, which is completely unlike any other, provides the complex carbon-hydrogen-oxygen molecular groups that the plants are often too stressed to make sufficiently for themselves.

It even helps to use up excess fertilizers, and re-foliates Ficus Benjaminas defoliated from a tankard situation.

The largest chains of thousands of tropical plant rental technicians, and the largest chains of buildings, have reported that regular addition of this product, which is called SUPERthrive, keeps the plants healthy and active — despite stresses — "until they finally grow out of the buildings."

Soaker hose system uses 70 percent less water

This spring and summer, gardeners can conserve water when tending their gardens by installing a soaker hose system rather than by using conventional watering methods.

According to "Turn of the Tap," a guide to water conservation, 45 percent of the U.S. population will live in areas regulated by water-usage legislation by the end of 1992. In 1991, 25 percent of the population was affected by such legislation. So, conserving gardening water makes good sense for the environment and your pocketbook.

Conserve water

According to garden watering expert Shannon Bard, president of Aquapore Moisture Systems, of Phoenix, Arizona, his company's Moisture Master Soaker Hose can use up to 70 percent less water than a hand-held hose or sprinkler system.

"Hand-held hoses and sprinkler systems are not as water efficient, because spray watering allows most of the moisture to evaporate into the air or to run off before it has a chance to soak into the ground," Bard explains.

"A soaker hose, on the other hand, can be installed in the ground under a top layer of mulch or soil, which means water won't evaporate. Instead, it will soak through slowly to plant roots," he says.

Soaker hoses can also be laid on top of the soil for better maneuverability and ease of use, but the most water-efficient method is to bury the hose.

Quality soaker hoses, such as Moisture Master, "weep" water slowly through their porous walls, allowing a consistent application of water to plant roots. The amount of "weeping" water can be controlled simply by adjusting water flow at the faucet. Uniform watering can lead to the fullest, healthiest plants.

Some tips from Bard on how to save water when tending your lawn and garden:

- Bury the soaker hose 2 to 6 inches deep in the ground for the most water-efficient use. The Moisture Master Soaker Hose does not freeze, so it can be left in the soil year-round.

- When possible, if using a hand-held hose, water plants early in the morning. You will lose less water to evaporation at this time of day than in the afternoon, when the sun is high.

- Don't let soil dry out. Instead, water your plants consistently with less volume during the week. Moist soil allows water to reach plant roots more efficiently through "capillary" action.

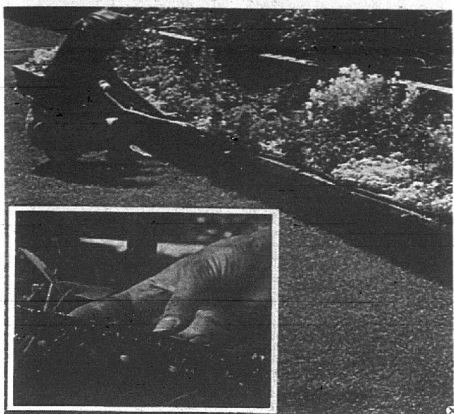

Inundating dry soil with excess water can also waste it by causing run-off and can "starve" plants between watering.

Use plants indigenous to your geographical area. Such plants are equipped to use water most efficiently for their climate, especially in drier conditions.

- Group plants of similar water requirements so you don't waste water on plants that don't

"Hand-held hoses and sprinkler systems are not as water efficient, because spray watering allows most of the moisture to evaporate or to run off."

— Shannon Bard
Aquapore president

— A homegardener lays down Moisture Master Soaker Hose, before placing it in her flower bed, where it "weeps" water slowly from its porous surface to water flowers efficiently. Insert shows water that has seeped to the outside of the hose.

If you have two cars, using the more efficient one will help save two million gallons of gas a day

Proper lawn care saves time, energy and money

It is becoming more difficult for lawn and garden caretakers to dispose of landscape wastes by traditional methods. People have been taught to bag grass clippings to protect their lawns from thatch, but the United States is swiftly running out of landfill space and alternative methods must be followed. There is a better way. We can take a positive step in helping our environment and have a more beautiful lawn at the same time by following the new Don't Bag It Lawn Care Plan.

This innovative program was devised by Dr. Bill Knoop, a turf grass specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, and Robert A. Whitney, former county Extension Service agent in Fort Worth, Texas. The two-member team was awarded a USDA superior service award in the environmental and natural resource protection category.

The Don't Bag It Plan has been piloted in over 1,500 demonstration lawns across the state of Texas. A survey of 200 participants in the plan showed 98 percent of the respondents would never bag grass clippings again.

Bans on landscape wastes are already in existence in many states, and are being proposed in others in increasing numbers. New EPA guidelines recommend a 25 percent waste reduction nationwide. Between March and September, grass clippings account for up to 20 percent - 50 percent of the total volume of solid waste in our nation's landfills. Reports show that some states will be totally degraded by landfill sites in this decade. Something must be done.

The fact is that grass clippings are recyclable and do not need to take up decreasing landfill space. In fact, they are a valuable resource, containing about 85 percent water, 4 percent nitrogen, 0.5 percent phosphorus, 2 percent potassium and other essential nutrients. Many dedicated lawn caretakers will ask, "Won't leaving grass clippings on my lawn cause thatch?" The answer, according to experts at major universities, is "no!"

Thatch is a layer of living and dead rhizomes, roots and stems growing between the green layer and the soil. Allowing grass clippings to remain on the lawn will not cause thatch. Thatch is usually caused by too much nitrogen, too much water, and poor soil drainage. It has no relationship to grass clippings.

In addition to reducing the amount of solid waste going to landfills, recycling grass clippings saves time, energy and money. The adherent to the Don't Bag It Plan will actually see an improvement in his or her lawn, due to a more effective lawn care management plan. By not bagging clippings, he or she will spend about 38 percent less time mowing and will realize a more efficient use of fertilizer and water. This means lower lawn care expenses, less maintenance and a more beautiful lawn.

Following the plan:

1. Purchase a mulching mower or a kit to convert your present mower into a mulching mower.
2. Mow every five to six days, never removing more than 1/3 of the grass leaf.

3. Use a fertilizer with at least 1/2 of its total nitrogen content in a slow-release form to promote slow, even growth. Parker Fertilizer Company, Inc. has developed new GreensKote Turf Cycle fertilizer specifically to meet the criteria of the Don't Bag It program.

Fertilizers containing soluble (quick-release) nitrogen cause surge growth rates for short periods of time. But GreensKote Turf Cycle contains 50 percent of its nitrogen content in the form of new Polyon controlled-release nitrogen.

Polyon offers the ultimate in controlled-release fertilizer technology because it feeds continuously for four to five months. Paced by temperature and moisture, the ultra-thin polymer coating meters nitrogen slowly, evenly and safely to your lawn.

1. Water less often, but be sure to water enough at one time. One half to one inch of water is needed. (Make sure that it soaks into the soil rather than runs off.)

5. Allow grass clippings to remain on your lawn. They will rapidly decompose and return valuable nutrients into the soil.

6. Making a compost heap is another excellent alternative to bagging grass clippings. Composted grass clippings improve the physical characteristics of garden soil, in addition to returning valuable nutrients.

Following the Don't Bag It Lawn Care Plan will decrease mowing time because the grass will be shorter (easier to cut) and extra time will not have to be spent bagging clippings and preparing them for garbage pick-up.

With the proper use of water and fertilizers, the lawn caretaker will also save time and money. The bottom line is less waste going to landfills and a more effective lawn care system. This looks like a win-win situation for everyone concerned.

Journal food survey

Ed Heins
Editorial Director
Suburban Journals

In recent weeks, we have gradually added new features and, in some cases, more color to your Journal food pages. We plan to add other useful, local food information in the future.
As a part of those improvements, we are asking today for help from you.
We want you to complete the following questionnaire, clip it out and send it to us.
Please complete and mail by Friday, March 27. We'll tabulate your answers as well as those from readers of each of our 44 local weekly papers in the St. Louis area.

After tabulating the answers, we'll report back to you what you told us and then use the information to plan further improvements in your food pages.
We know cooking habits, eating habits and, for that matter, family lifestyles are changing. One of our responses has been to add a Wise Ways column by Linda Benedict which focuses on your interests in food costs, nutrition and speed of preparation.
We look forward to receiving your questionnaire answers. After completing, clip it out and send to:

Dessert lovers can 'waist' away with sweets

Cool and creamy, entertaining desserts like Cherry Almond Supreme and Tiramisu need not be loaded with calories and fat.

Weight-watchers will get their just desserts with rich, deliciously indulgent recipes that use sugar-free gelatin and pudding. They take little time to make, can be refrigerated and served immediately when ready.

Yes, there is room for dessert and snacks when tasty solutions are offered that are light in fat or even fat-free. Not only is there no desire to eliminate these special parts of the day, but there is no reason to cut them, because a little dessert—treated as part of a day's eating routine or as a special reward—can be eaten without turning into a calorie binge.

Tiramisu is based on the popular Italian dessert of the same name. Cherry Almond Supreme offers instant pleasure. Both recipes are from "There's Always Room for Sugar-Free Jell-O," a cookbook with a variety of lower-fat ideas. It includes eating options like snacks, shakes and family classics, as well as fat-free salads and special occasion desserts. To receive a copy, send a check or money order for $2.50 to: Sugar Free Cookbook, Kraft General Foods Inc., P.O. Box 23106, Kankakee, Ill. 60902.

Cherry almond supreme

- 1 can (8 oz.) pitted dark sweet cherries in light syrup, quartered, drained, reserving 1/2 cup syrup
1 pkg. (4 serving) sugar-free cherry gelatin
1/4 cup boiling water
Ice cubes
2 tbsp. chopped toasted almonds
1 cup frozen reduced-fat whipped topping, thawed

Completely dissolve gelatin in boiling water. Combine syrup and ice to make 1 1/2 cups. Add to gelatin, stirring until slightly thickened. Remove any unmelting ice. Let stand or refrigerate until thickened. Measure 1 1/2 cups. Add half the cherries and half the nuts. Fold whipped topping into remaining gelatin. Add remaining cherries and nuts. Spoon into glasses. Refrigerate about 15 minutes until set, but not firm. Top with clear gelatin mixture. Refrigerate about 1 hour until set. Makes about 3 cups or 6 servings: 70 calories, 2 g protein, 10 g carbohydrate, 3 g fat, no cholesterol and 65 mg sodium per serving. Diabetic exchange per serving: 1 fruit, 1 fat.

Tiramisu

- 1 1/2 cups cold (2 percent) low-fat milk
1 round carton (8 oz.) light process cream cheese product
2 tsp. instant coffee
1 tsp. hot water
2 tsp. brandy
1 pkg. (4 serving) sugar-free vanilla instant pudding mix

2 cups frozen reduced-fat whipped topping, thawed
1 pkg. (3 oz.) ladyfingers, split
1 square (1 oz.) semisweet chocolate, grated

Process 1/2 cup milk and cream cheese product in blender until smooth. Dissolve coffee in water. Add to blender with brandy and remaining 1 cup milk. Add pudding mix. Blend until smooth.

Pour mixture into bowl. Stir in whipped topping. Cut ladyfingers in half horizontally. Cover bottom of 8-inch springform pan with ladyfinger halves. Place remaining halves, cut ends down, around side of pan. Spoon pudding mixture into pan. Chill about 3 hours until firm.

Remove side of pan. Garnish with chocolate. Makes 12 servings; 140 calories, 4 g protein, 15 g carbohydrate, 6 g fat, 35 mg cholesterol and 240 mg sodium each. Diabetic exchanges per serving: 1 1/2 starch, 1 fat.

OASIS: Age no barrier to adventure

By Lois Kendall
Staff writer

Age is no barrier to adventure, and wanderlust can strike at any time.

More older Americans than ever before are hitting the highways, riding the railways and flying the skyways to explore the world they've seen only in pictures. Many retirees refuse to be relegated to rocking chairs and quilting bees—they're too busy battling one-armed bandits in Las Vegas casinos and practicing their samba steps in the ballroom of a cruise ship.

"They're living out their fantasies of travel after retirement," says Terry Williams, director of the Older Adult Service and Information System (OASIS).

"It's delayed gratification. They worked all their lives and didn't give themselves the luxury of travel. Now it's a rewarding experience to get out of their neighborhood and city to discover and explore the rest of the world."

OASIS is an organization for those age 55 and over that offers educational, cultural and health promotional programs, including travel opportunities.

"We offer at least five or six trips per semester, ranging from local day trips and regional weekends to national and international expeditions," Williams says. "Some 1,500 to 2,000 of our members go on trips in a year, and they like a wide variety of destinations."

For people over 55

Upcoming jaunts include a trip aboard the Alton trolley to explore the little river town and a three-week tour of Greece, combining senior citizens and college students that focuses on the country's art, history and culture.

"A lot of older adults appreciate the benefits of group travel," Williams says. "They like to know most of the details are being taken care of—but they don't want every minute planned in advance. We time our trips with consideration for older people—not five days, six countries. Pacing is important, giving them time to rest, chat and reflect. We also consider physical limitations; we don't plan a great deal of walking or stair climbing."

Security is an important factor for many older travelers, Williams said. While individuals may have their own itineraries during the day, he calls it "comforting and comfortable" to have a rendezvous point with the group at night.

"Some people are naturally gregarious, and they like to travel, either alone or in a group, because they make friends with everyone they meet," Williams says. "Others are not so extroverted. They enjoy going with the same group on the entire trip, making friends over time. It's an advantage going with members of their own generation; they have similar backgrounds and reference points."

Group travel offers many advantages for widows, who make up the majority of the older adult population, says Patti Webb, regional coordinator of Commerce Bank's Senior Partner Program.

The bank has offered trips for members 60 and older since 1985. One trip is offered every month, Webb says, with destinations ranging from the race track at Fairmount Park to the castles and museums of Europe.

"A lot of people, particularly women, don't like to travel alone. Many of them won't or can't drive," Webb says. "But they will sign up if they're going to be with 40 other people."

Webb generally accompanies the monthly travel group, which she describes as "adventurous, loving and warm. The seniors are a lot of fun and a great group to travel with."

For more information on OASIS travel packages, call Williams at 862-2933. For information on Commerce Bank's program, call Webb at 854-7369.

Commerce Bank and the Older Adult Service and Information System (OASIS) are combining on 13 programs for people over age 55 on W2/W-4W (77) at 9 a.m. Sundays through April 12.

Group travel can result in hefty discounts

By Lois Kendall
Staff writer

One of the main advantages of traveling in a group is discounts on fares and accommodations.

But even traveling alone, senior citizens can rack up hefty discounts through membership in the American Association of Retired Persons. Its large travel service offers special tours and services for those age 50 and over. Members are allowed sizable discounts.

Non-joiners can still get a 15 percent discount on Greyhound Bus to all destinations, more to some specific destinations. Call 800-872-7245 for information.

Amtrak offers a 15 percent discount on fares Mondays through Thursdays excluding holidays. Call 201-7800 for information.

Some airlines also offer discounted fares for frequent-flying seniors.

For seniors who do much of their adventuring in recreational vehicles in the great outdoors, the Golden Age Passport may be just the ticket.

The passport, for those age 63 and older, is a free lifetime entrance permit to federal parks, monuments and recreation areas.

The passport also provides a 50 percent off on federal user fees charged for facilities and services such as camping, boat launching and parking. The passport is available at most federal recreation areas.

Early preparation key to gardening success

Missouri Botanical Garden exclusive to the Journals

It's back to the garden and back to basics as spring begins pushing up the crocus and daffodils. Before the days get much longer and warmer, certain tasks need to be tended to around the house.

Early lawn preparation will mean greener, lusher looking yards this summer. Mow grass low to remove old turf growth before new spring growth and regular mowing begins. While walking about look for those telltale signs of troubled lawns — bare spots or patchy discolorations. Any time from mid-March to mid-April is good for overseeding those bare spots.

Fasty vegetables in June and July require getting down to business in the garden now. Both seeds and plants will be available at your local nursery soon. Many early bird gardeners have already started seed under grow-lights indoors.

Root crops — horseradish, carrots, parsnips or Jerusalem artichokes — that may still be in the ground from last year should be harvested as soon as possible before new green top-growth appears. Once these have been taken out, weed and clean the garden thoroughly. Compost old, dead stalks and other spent debris.

About every three years you should have your garden soil tested to determine the pH (acidity or alkalinity) levels and see if any nutrients are lacking. Adding fertilizers without knowing what your soil needs may be wasteful and do more harm than good. You can buy a simple test kit and do it yourself or bring a soil sample to the Missouri Botanical Garden's Center for Home Gardening for testing. The fee for this test is $15, which includes interpretation of soil test results and information on soil fertility. Soil testing is also available for a fee from your local county University Extension office.

Unless otherwise directed by a soil test, generally one to two pounds of 12-12-12 or an equivalent fertilizer per 100 square feet is sufficient for first application. Always read instructions carefully and wear gloves and eye protection when spreading any fertilizer or garden chemical. Fertilize your vegetable garden as you begin preparing your soil. As you till or turn the soil, work the nutrients into the ground.

If bulbs are planted in your garden, consider fertilizing them at this time with a "bulb booster." Broadcast the fertilizer over the planting beds or place in a thin ring around individual bulbs. Hose off any excess granules that stick to the foliage.

The Missouri Botanical Garden's Kemper Center for Home Gardening is open daily from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Each month there is a new and beautiful gardening display to give you ideas and inspiration.

Plant Doctor offers answers to common garden questions

By Barbara Perry Lawton

John Stephens of west St. Louis County has been gardening for nearly 70 years but has been a Master Gardener for about six years. He serves five hours each week on the Missouri Botanical Garden's Horticultural Answer Service and the Plant Doctor desk.

The Plant Doctor desk is located in the Center for Home Gardening. Stephens reports that the past week has been unusually busy at both services. He gathered the following gardening questions and answers during recent days at the Answering Service.

Many people are asking why their spring-flowering bulbs are already blooming and how they should care for them in case of a cold snap.

It's obvious why they are blooming early, Stephens says. We have had the mildest, warmest winter in many years.

Generally, those flowers and bulbs can stand temperatures as low as 28 or 29 degrees. You should do nothing to them.

Is it too late to prune fruit trees and grapes? This has been another common question in recent days.

"Yes, it is too late," Stephens says. Fruit trees and grape vines should be pruned while they are dormant. Due to the mild winter, people have not gotten around to some of their pruning chores, including fruit trees and grape vines.

The reason it's too late to prune is that the leaf buds are already opening and the sap is running. If pruned at this time, they may suffer die-back and may have severe sap-drip that attracts insects and diseases. Pruning really should be done by mid-February, although in many years, you can get by until about the end of February or even later.

PREVENTION IS THE BEST MEDICINE

Medication in the wrong hands can be deadly, Memorial Hospital's Poison Treatment Center can help prevent it.

Children act fast; so do poisons. An estimated 95 percent of all child poisoning incidents are preventable by education and precautions taken at home. Memorial Hospital offers free educational booklets and telephone stickers on poison prevention.

Poison victims may receive immediate medical advice by calling the Poison Treatment Center Hotline 238-1935. All calls are handled by a nurse aided by one of Memorial's emergency room physicians.

Often, immediate treatment can start in the home under the direction of a physician to reduce the severity of the poisoning.

To receive free educational material about Poison Prevention, call Memorial's Community Relations Department at 233-7750, extension 5649.

Vice President Jerry Walters gave a legislative report and read a letter on NARFE's ideas on reform of health care benefits. 'Food fight' spotlights anti-cancer choices

The American Cancer Society is encouraging area families to "join the food fight" on Thursday, March 19.

The Great American Food Fight Against Cancer on that day is intended to help people reduce their risk for certain cancers.

Modeled after the Great American Smokeout, the Food Fight is a day-long public awareness effort spotlighting the link between diet and cancer.

During the annual Food Fight celebration, American Cancer Society volunteers ask their friends, families and neighbors to choose foods that could lower their cancer risk.

"These cancer-fighting foods include those that are low in fat, high in fiber, and rich in Vitamins A and C," said Barbara Mihalich, chairman of the Quad Cities ACS Unit.

"Also recommended are cruciferous, or cabbage-family vegetables," she said.

"Current research indicates that diet may have more of an impact on cancer in the United States than any other factor, including tobacco," said Dr. John Uram, vice president of the Quad Cities Unit.

"Diet alone may account for as many as 35 percent of all fatal cancers."

"However, during the Food Fight celebration, the American Cancer Society's emphasis is not on such statistics," Uram said. "It's on having fun with healthy diet choices."

Food Fight activities will be breaking out in restaurants and schools, supermarkets and stores, businesses and hospitals in the local area.

For more information, persons may call the American Cancer Society toll-free at: 1 (800) ACS-2345.

Park District announces dates for three-day, weekend trips

The Granite City Park District has announced the dates for three-day weekend trips to be made from May through December. Several one-day trips will also be made but have not been finalized at this time.

The first weekend trip will be May 8-10 to the Huntsville, Ala., area. The highlight of this trip will be visiting the U.S. Space and Rocket Center, America's largest space attraction. Huntsville is expected to be beautiful at that time of the year and it stresses old-fashioned hospitality.

Another new trip this year will be on June 12-14 to Columbus, Ohio, to the Amerifairs Celebration. The event includes "spectacular displays and entertainment, along with international shopping and outstanding food," a spokesman said.

On July 10-12, at Bartlesville, Okla., there will be visits to an Indian Guide center, a 3,600-acre wildlife preserve, candle factory, oil well, etc., along with a hay ride and chuckwagon meal.

For the annual trip to Wisconsin Aug. 14-16, new attractions have been added. Motel accommodations again will be at the Swiss-styled Chalet Landhaus in New Glarus.

Branson, Mo., will be the attraction on Sept. 18-20. Tickets have been obtained for the Grand Palace Theater and Mel Tillis' new showhouse. With the popularity of Branson, these reservations are expected to be in great demand.

The Christmas-season weekend trip this year will be made Dec. 4-6 in order to see the Christmas displays in Nashville, Tenn. Visits will be made to Twitty City, the General Jackson lunch buffet and Christmas show and the Grand Ole Opry, with other attractions announced later.

The dates the trips will go on sale will be announced at a later date.

As in the past, the cost of the trips will be nominal.

Residents of the Park District will be given priority, but non-residents may be placed on a waiting list.

Many non-residents have made these trips in the past, as the trips are offered to residents for approximately two weeks; if the capacity is yet filled, non-residents are called.

Tickets go on sale at the Wilson Park office at 8 a.m. the day each trip is sold. The entire cost of the trip must be paid at the time a reservation is made.

Anyone having questions or wishing to obtain more information about the trips can call the park office at 877-3059, Monday through Friday.

OH MY ACHING CORNS!

A phrase so commonly used by those suffering needlessly from painful corns. Although trimming them affords temporary relief, within 1-2 months regrowth of the corn occurs along with the pain and discomfort. The recurrence is due to the underlying calcium deposit causing excessive pressure where the skin responds by building up that hard corn tissue. In almost all instances the corn can be permanently removed by an office procedure requiring little or no time off of work. There is no need to suffer any longer. Consult the physicians and surgeons at THE FOOT HEALTH CENTERS.

Big Lots stores offer 'deep-discounted' merchandise

Big Lots stores, which began today advertising in 21 selected Journal newspapers, plan to open "from three to five" more locations in the St. Louis area during 1992, the group's district manager said.

Ed Markgraf, district manager of the eight Big Lots stores open in the metro area, said the "close-out retailer" plans an aggressive promotion/advertising program in St. Louis this year.

The stores offer deep-discounted merchandise obtained in large amounts from manufacturers' overruns or liquidation sales across the country. But customers at Big Lots include a wide range of demographics, Markgraf said.

"Our customers transcend economic standing," Markgraf said. "A higher-income customer can be just as eager to find a bargain as those who might be required to stretch a dollar."

The eight Big Lots stores in the metro area include five in Missouri and three in Illinois. The Missouri stores are at:

- Florissant Meadows Shopping Center in Florissant
- 10022 W. Florissant Ave.
- 1070 Lemay Ferry Road in South County.

- 1-55 and Broadway in St. Louis.

- Manchester and McCausland in Maplewood.

The Illinois stores are at:

- 1751 Homer Adams Parkway in Alton.

- Crossroads Shopping Center in Granite City.

- Carlyle Plaza in Belleville.

Kent Larsson, a vice president for sales promotions for the parent company, Consolidated Stores Corp., said, "Close-outs are a way of life in modern manufacturing."

Close-outs might come after the manufacturer decides to change a product's pattern, color, size or formulation, Markgraf said the merchandise is first-run but the manufacturer wants to move to something else.

"Then, we come in and buy all of the remaining product and offer to our customers at deep discounts," Markgraf said.

He said customers will find the same categories of products whenever they come in but might not find the same individual product one week to the next.

"You'll always find shampoos but you might not find a particular brand, depending on where we get the best buy," he said.

Markgraf said the shift of advertising to the Journals represents acknowledgment by Big Lots that the Journals can more "finely define" market territories than other media. Also, additional delivery routes can be added easily and more efficiently when Big Lots adds new stores in St. Louis, Markgraf said.

The Journals' Grand Tour will go to New England and the Province of Quebec in the fall to visit historic homes and view colorful countryside.

Journals' New England tours have much to offer travelers

In New England, the first nip in the September air means travelers are anxious to start viewing the season's spectacular fall foliage color. The Journals' two small tour groups to New England depart St. Louis on Sept. 21 and Oct. 2.

The Journals' Grand Tours visit six New England states and the Province of Quebec through forests of pitch pine and laurel; down roads lined with crimson and gold leaves from oak, hickory, beech, birch and sugar maple trees.

Quaint roadside villages full of country inns, antique shops and beautiful historic homes spring up around each bend.

The professionally planned itinerary combines colorful countryside, villages and towns with the excitement and entertainment of the cultural centers of Boston, Quebec, Montreal and New York City. Fine meals, services and accommodations are provided through the care and planning of Tauck Tours and Tenholder Travel in the Grand Tour tradition.

The tours are open to all Journal readers. Early reservations are encouraged due to the limited number of seats available on each departure.

For information, reservations and a brochure contact the tour coordinator at Tenholder Travel at 1-800-333-5910 in St. Louis.

The Journals also sponsors Grand Tours to Hawaii and Alaska which are sold out for 1992 but will operate again in February and July of 1993.

Pesci brings 'My Cousin Vinny' home

By Harry Hamm
Correspondent

Academy award-winning actor Joe Pesci has played both a bloodthirsty murderer in "Goodfellas" and a glib burglar in the comedy "Home Alone."

It is the latter category that brings Pesci back to movie houses in "My Cousin Vinny," a small but very funny picture about a street-wise attorney who gets his first experience in court defending his nephew on a murder charge.

Pesci is Vinny; a lawyer from Brooklyn who managed to pass the New York State bar exam in only six years. When his nephew, Stan, played by Mitchell Whitfield, and Stan's friend Bill, played by Ralph Macchio, are arrested in Wahoo, Ala., for a convenience store murder they did not commit, Vinny and his longtime paramour Lisa, played by Marisa Tomei, drive south to protect the boys from a wrongful prosecution.

"My Cousin Vinny" is at its best in the courtroom scenes when Vinny is getting the boys off the hook and determining that it was impossible for the lads to have committed the crime.

Veteran actor Fred Gwynne is a stitch as the judge who ends each day in the early proceedings by finding Vinny in contempt of court.

Rated R (language and mildly suggestive sexual situations), 119 minutes.

Pesci right at home with 'Vinny' role

By Harry Hamm
Correspondent

Joe Pesci, 48, broke onto the movie scene in a big way 12 years ago playing Jake La Motta's long-suffering brother in "Raging Bull," opposite Robert De Niro — a role that earned Pesci an Oscar nomination.

A little over a decade later, Pesci was nominated for his second Oscar. This time he won for his chilling portrayal of a cold-blooded murderer in Martin Scorsese's "Goodfellas."

Pesci's latest movie, his 18th to be released, is a comedy called "My Cousin Vinny," a project Pesci was offered because of his work in his first big success, "Raging Bull."

Pesci plays Vinny, an inexperienced, Brooklyn-born attorney pressed into working in the South when he travels to Alabama to defend his nephew, who is charged for a murder he didn't commit.

"The character of Vinny was inspired by the character of Joey La Motta, which Joe Pesci played in 'Raging Bull,'" says "Vinny" producer Paul Schiff.

So it seemed logical to cast Joe in this film. I can't think of a better marriage of actor and character on paper than Joe Pesci and Vinny. Working with a world-class actor of his talent and accomplishment is a great opportunity.

Pesci said Vinny is a bright and honest man who's a lot of fun.

"But he's very serious when it comes to being a lawyer," he said. "Unfortunately, his bad grammar and poor diction give people the impression he's not very intelligent or capable. Of course, we know he is."

Pesci's physical appearance and East Coast accent have belied the truth about his years of training and education.

His father, Angelo, worked three jobs so his son could afford to take acting, dancing and music lessons. In fact, the elder Pesci saw performing as a way out of poverty for Joe.

Born in New Jersey, Pesci began his show business career at the age of 4 on a television show called "Star Time Kids." Having been musically trained, Pesci grew up performing on the stage, both in New Jersey and New York. He even had a stand-up comedy act and supplemented his income by working as a restaurant manager.

Pesci, who is divorced after three marriages, has a 25-year-old daughter named Tiffany, whom he says he is not anxious to get into the acting business. Pesci says he feels parents should not coerce their children to follow in their footsteps, no matter what the occupation is.

"The emotional side of what I do is what gets to me the most," Pesci said. "I guess if there's something I don't like about acting it's the fact that I have to use my emotions a lot, and it can be very unerving."

"I like the fact that I'm getting star billing now, but I don't want to start doing predictable roles. The work and the parts have to be exceptional opportunities or you're going to kill your career."

"If people get the idea I'm like many of the people I play, they're right, with the exception of Tommy DeVito, who I played in 'Goodfellas.' That guy was dangerously insane."

Pesci's next film is called "Public Eye," in which he plays a crime photographer. His co-star is Barbara Hershey. Pesci is currently filming "Home Alone 2: Lost in New York." That film is scheduled for release around Thanksgiving.

Classic comedy at Looking Glass

"Arsenic and Old Lace" has all the elements of a spine-tingling thriller: unlikely murders, unsuspecting victims, dastardly henchmen, a mad scientist and a few deranged psychopaths. But it's not a thriller. It's a classic comedy.

"There are a thousand different subplots and it all goes in different directions," said Don Urban, a cast member and assistant director.

"Arsenic and Old Lace" will be performed at 7:30 p.m. Friday and Saturday March 20 and 21 with a Sunday matinee at 2 p.m. March 22 at the Looking Glass Playhouse in Lebanon.

Like many comedies of the late 1930s and early 1940s "Arsenic and Old Lace," is riddled with dark humor, sinister subplots and eccentric characters, he said.

The basic premise is that of a young nephew, Mortimer, who discovers that his kindly old aunts are poisoning elderly men and disposing of their bodies. To further complicate matters Mortimer's brother, Jonathan, reappears after a long absence.

Jonathan is on a rampage because a mad doctor has performed plastic surgery to make him look like Boris Karloff.

Meanwhile, the old ladies' other nephew is running around yelling "bully, bully" because he thinks he is Teddy Roosevelt.

But things don't get really complicated until the police start to investigate everyone.

Tickets for the show are $6 for all seats, with half-price tickets for senior citizens for Sunday afternoon performance. To reserve tickets call 537-4962.

No format changes expected at KMOX; latest ratings

Ian MacBryde

As annoying as some of those ideas may be to individual listeners, the discussion certainly helps to focus attention on issues. For me at least, some of the best inspiration comes from listeners with whom I agree the least. After all, if anger doesn't get us going, what will?

It may come as a surprise to those people who have not lived in other parts of the country, but most cities do not have a radio station which dominates the market as KMOX does here. Nor are there many radio stations anywhere which, in this television age, have the kind of clout which KMOX does.

Anyone CBS chooses to head our three network-affiliated stations will be too smart to mess with that kind of success.

Ratings reflect viewer demand. I heard a woman on a talk show the other day — as one can hear most any day — complaining about what she sees on television. "When will the networks learn," she asked, "that the majority of us don't want to see that kind of trash? We want to see good, family shows (or words to that effect)."

She was, of course, referring to do what she perceives as libertine behavior flowing all over the tube and pouring into her living room. And, entitled as she is to her opinion, she's wrong in her basic premise. The majority of people who watch television do want the kind of programs which they see on television.

By and large, we — the television audience — get what we deserve. We vote with our choices of what we watch, and though it may not suit many of us, it suits most of us. Which brings us to the subject of ratings.

The February news ratings for our three network-affiliated stations provide a rare opportunity. Each of the three news departments can take some comfort in the numbers.

KSDK-TV (Channel 5), on top of the ratings for virtually every news program over the past few years, is still on top despite the loss of some key personnel on and off camera. KMOX-TV (Channel 4), which has been making some inroads into the Channel 5 lead, moved closer to first place in a key time slot.

And KTVI-TV (Channel 2), for several years only an afterthought in the rating books, is finally making a few waves.

In the important 10 p.m. news ratings, Channel 5 continues to occupy the No. 1 spot with a 22 rating/35 share (rating equals percent of people who have a television who are tuned into a particular program; share equals percent of people using television tuned into a particular program). Channel 4 was just two points back in share (20/31), its closest approach at that time slot in at least five years. Channel 2 got a 10/16 — dismal, but the best the station has had at that time for years. By contrast, in February 1988, Channel 5 had an eight-point lead.
